

Environmental sustainability week

Five days to go...

'How low can we go?' challenge

Preparation for the 'how low can we go?' challenge is well underway. In order to take part, you should do the following:

- make a note of your unique code which will be shortly be shared with staff, students, governors and trustees; and
- open the Google form each day to add your challenge information (click here); you will need to enter your code, the date you are adding it, and the challenges that have been completed.

Please note, if a family has more than one sibling taking part, the challenges can only be recorded on one of the sibling's forms to avoid duplication. If challenges are completed over the weekend, they can be recorded through Monday's entry.

Book swap/donation

The staff and student book swap/donation is being organised by schools to promote the importance of reusing items as part of reducing carbon footprints. Each school will inform students and parents how to bring in the books and the arrangements for allowing students to select one of the reused books. Staff are also encouraged to bring in books for reuse. Posters will be displayed around schools to promote the book swap/donation (click here) during the week.
