What can parents/guardians do to support?

You don't need to be an expert in every subject to help your child. You are an expert in your child and every child is different. You will know the best ways to motivate and support your child.

Some suggestions:

- Agree a balance between revision and social life with your child. Flexibility is key but your child may need support in creating boundaries.
- Talk to your child if they feel that they are falling behind, are feeling demotivated or overwhelmed. Acknowledge their feelings and work together to achieve perspective and a solution.
- Show an interest in their studies. They may need you to act as a study buddy to quiz on key terms or facts.
- Find a suitable place for your child to revise.
- Provide lots of healthy food and snacks to keep your child motivated.
- Limit screen time and use of social media to keep your child focused.
- Provide revision material, eg. pens, post-its, revision cards, etc.
- Keep in touch with school. Check your child's Google Classroom. Let your child's tutor or class teacher know if you have any concerns.

Student Wellbeing – Coping with Exams

It is natural to feel some stress around GCSEs; they are important. Stress can be beneficial as adrenaline can enhance exam performance. However, stress needs to be managed to make sure you do not become overwhelmed.

- Make sure you are organised. Plan your revision timetable and make sure you know which exams you are doing and when. Organise your revision space and revision materials including stationery and past papers etc.
- Eat well. Provide nutrition for your brain by eating healthy meals and limiting junk food and fizzy drinks. Make sure you eat a filling and nutritious breakfast before every exam.
- Drink plenty of water to keep your brain hydrated and thinking clearly. Aim to drink more than two litres of water per day.
- Sleep well. Teenagers need around nine hours' sleep every night so work out what time you are going to get up and work backwards from there to decide what time you need to be in bed and preparing for sleep. Turn off electronic devices around an hour before you need to be asleep so that your brain can wind down.
- Take exercise. If you already play sport or undertake exercise, don't stop. If you don't, try going for a walk for 30 minutes per day. This will give you a break from your studies and make you feel less stressed and more focused.
- Avoid distractions. Turn off your phone and limit how often you check social media.
- Talk to someone. If you become overwhelmed or concerned, talk to your family, friends or teachers to help you with your concerns.
